As seen on Security Today

One of the leading adaptors to mobile access control systems is the multi-family residential industry, an example being the high rise, luxury condominium that Quantum Energy Products upgraded in downtown Sarasota. No longer wanting to rely on their older key fob system, the condo board expressed a desire to future-proof their way of getting into the building, and condo residents pushed for the move to a mobile solution.

Seen on the Street: A Blast From the Past

One of the more interesting finds during our travels, this antiquated access control “system” was discovered at the Iolani Palace in downtown Honolulu, Hawaii. Once used as a royal residence, then as the capitol building, the palace is now a museum.
